Fabrici, Girolamo (Aquapendente) 1533 - 1619

DEGREE: MD  DATE: 1559  PLACE: Padua
TEACHER/RESEARCH ADVISOR: Fallopio

professor of anatomy and surgery; first to describe in detail the valves in veins; wrote treatises on the anatomy of the larynx, the lens of the eye, the mechanics of respiration, and the actions of muscles; published exhaustive study of the development of the chick embryo and thereby founded fields of comparative and developmental embryology; teacher of William Harvey, who discovered the circulation of the blood.

7. Adelmann, H. B. The Embryological Treatises of Hieronymus Fabricius of Aquapendente;